

when a man was killed and property was burned and looted. That explains why East Youngstown went suddenly mad to such an extent that the Ohio state militia had to be called out.

Many personal and phone calls have come into The Day Book for the real cause of all the trouble down there in the steel district. The claim was made that the real blame was just resting on the fence and had not really been placed.

A committee on industrial relations came through today from Washington with a report that places the blame as shown in the first paragraph. "Low wages and excessive hours of labor so brutalized the foreigners employed in the steel plants of East Youngstown that the recent rioting and wholesale destruction of property was but the natural ending of an intolerable situation, says the report.

The revolt in Ohio, said George P. West, author of the committee report, so alarmed the United States Steel Corporation that as a direct result Judge Gary immediately ordered a 10 per cent increase of the 230,000 employees of his corporation, so as to prevent the strike from spreading.

Guards of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. are charged in the report with being hasty in opening fire on the crowd of strikers around the gates of the company bridge.

The steel industry of the country is scored for its opposition to unions.

"So long as the steel employers could maintain, with the aid of charity, two men for every job, discontent was smothered," said the report.

Forty-one per cent of all deaths in Youngstown during 1913 were of children under five years.

Washington, Jan. 18.—An admission that the Bethlehem armor works had sold armor plate to Russia cheaper than to the United States was made by the senate naval affairs committee today by President E. C. Grace.

In explanation, Grace swore his company had dumped armor in Russia solely to open a new field of sale.

Grace said his company, from 1887 to the Wilson administration, had been assured yearly that the various presidents wished the industry developed. On this he based his argument that the Tillman measure looking toward a government plant was an injustice.

Asked for proofs of the governmental requests he said the letters had been destroyed in the recent fire.

WANT AD IN NEWS COST MRS. BECKER $200 IN COURT

Mrs. Mary Becker's want ad in the Daily News drew her a $200 fine in morals court last night. Ulysses Smith, bartender at her saloon, 3776 W. Grand av., was fined $100.

Mrs. Becker and her bartender got in trouble when Capt. Meagher noticed a fishy-looking want ad in the Daily News and sent a policewoman to investigate. The policewoman reported that the ad, which was for a housekeeper, lead her to Mrs. Becker's flat over her saloon. There, according to Policewoman Anna Schumann, she was told that the position was that of selling her soul in the saloon below. The proposition was that she should solicit men in the saloon and take them to a room above. She was to get her room and board and half of the money she could earn from the men.

Capt. Meagher regularly reads over the want ads in the newspapers to see if there are any "queer" ones. Had he not noticed this one in the Daily News the other day there is no telling what would have happened to innocent girls who might have answered it, not knowing what sort of a place they were entering.
